

The GREEN SIDE OF VENICE

Venice can really boast about its wide variety of parks, ranging from the largest to the smallest, both private and public. You would never imagine that the watery city of Venice would have so much greenery, if you know where to look! These spaces include many that were the former private gardens and parklands of the city's nobility and whether it is just a small square with surrounding trees or a larger open space, they are all peaceful places to relax.
